

FAQ

School personnel will do their best to match students' strengths and abilities to the job with the help of the employer and the individual learning plan.

If necessary and if available, school personnel will provide supports for the student's success at the workplace. The monitoring teacher and the employer will need to have a good understanding of the student's expectations.

Ideally, the employer will have good knowledge of the student's special need and will communicate quickly, should challenges occur at work. At times, students with special needs will require extra and repeated instructions, more time to do a "job" and a supportive and friendly atmosphere.

In return, many employers who have worked with students with special needs have thoroughly enjoyed the experience, as have their staff members. They have recognized the serious need to help these students and have helped immensely to improve the quality of the life and learning experiences for "their student."

Our Passport to Prosperity team is ready and willing to work with employers who want to provide special needs students with workplace experiences. Give us a call, 416.440.5113, or email passport2prosperity@thelearningpartnership.ca.
